

Learning to love your EHO

When you prepare raw bacon it's all too easy to risk the wrath of your Environmental Health Officer.

You've had to store the rashers away from cooked products, but there's never quite enough space.

Your staff need to take special care when frying or grilling, in disposing of hot oil and residues, and in reducing the danger of fire.

All without burning themselves, or incurring too much wastage.

Then there's the inevitable build-up of fat and grime, and even the smell can become too invasive.

You don't need your EHO to tell you there's a problem, but there is a better way.

Dew Valley Cooked Bacon offers a quick, fool-proof and cost-effective solution that has already found favour with some of the biggest names in the food industry.

Our specially prepared, consistent rashers are ready to serve or re-heat straight from the pack, with a guaranteed slice count that helps you eliminate wastage and safeguard profits.

And there's no hot oil to dispose of.

You won't even be adding to that pile of greasy pots and pans, as we've done the preparation for you. The risk of staff injuries is reduced, along with your energy and labour costs.

So, it won't only be your EHO who's smiling.

How can we be so confident of our Cooked Bacon's performance in your commercial kitchen?

We work closely with our customers to understand their requirements and to fulfil their needs, investing in an extensive R&D programme to build on our leadership in advanced technology.

We've also opened an outlet at Loftus Road Stadium to gain first hand experience of life at the sharp end! Dew Valley Cooked Bacon enables us to serve filled baguettes during the hectic pre-match and half-time periods quickly, efficiently and safely. We never stop learning, and that fires our enthusiasm. And it's infectious – England Youth and Under 21 Internationals Richard Langley and Clarke Carlisle contested a hotly disputed baguette at the opening!

Under the registered title Buy2Bite, we're eager to launch other marketing strategies to help us to help you.

It's worth a call just to find out your nearest supplier.

Together, we might even impress your EHO.

After all, we'd like to look on him as possibly our best salesman.
